POST-WAR DEVELOPMENT OF NATIONAL PARKS

The provision of facilities for recreation is likely to rank high among Canadian post-war activities. Already some public bodies are increasing their appropriation for the development of tourist travel—no doubt in anticipation of victory with a short time.

No one can forecast with any degree of accuracy when the war will end, but most people agree that when it does, there will be a great demand for recreation and travel than this world has ever known. A people, wearied in body and spirit by the strain of war and by heavy responsibilities, often unrelieved even by the usual holidays and vacations, will want rest and recreation as they have never wanted it before. This surge of recreation-seekers must be anticipated and the necessary human and physical equipment organized to meet its requirements.

Nature has been especially generous to Canada in providing recreational areas of great extent and variety in widely separated parts of the country. Canada is fortunate, too, in possessing a system of national parks which can be used both for the maintenance of health and morale at home and the attraction of tourists from abroad.

In addition to the 26 areas covering more than 29,700 square miles under federal ownership and administration as national parks, other areas are being considered for park development. More than 10,000 square miles in the Yukon Territory adjacent to the Alaskan Highway have been set aside recently for possible extension of the national parks system. Two additional sites have been offered by the province of Quebec and one by New Brunswick. Proposals looking toward the establishment of a sea-level park in British Columbia have been discussed. It is expected that other sites, representative of the most suitable areas for the purpose, will be offered by the provinces. Already a chain of these national parks extends from British Columbia in the west to Cape Breton in the east. It includes some of the finest scenery in the world as well as other features attractive to the vacationist.

Postwar development plans include better arterial and secondary highways leading to the parks, improved highways within the parks, cheaper accommodations available to those of low incomes, secondary roads, foot and horse trails in order to render points of special interest readily accessible, and improved fire and game protection to meet increased dangers from heavier and more widespread use of the national parks.

Is this all you have put aside for next winter

The coal you will burn next winter will have to be mined this Spring and Summer and hauled by the railroads to dealers' yards before harvest.

There will be plenty of coal if everybody cooperates by buying at once—and keeping the mines in operation.

DEPARTMENT OF MUNITIONS and SUPPLY
Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister

SUPPORT GIVES THEM CONFIDENCE

"An army can move only as fast as its supplies." That truth is well established. Engineers and infantry need artillery support. All need ammunition... food... and they need moral support... proof that we, at home, are doing all we can to back them up.

Attack wins objectives. Support wins wars.

And that is where we, on the home front, fit into the war programme. We must furnish support. We must buy more Victory Bonds.

Bear in mind that part of the money which Victory Bonds provide is used to buy foods which Canadian farmers produce and which is needed to feed our fighters and the fighting forces of our allies.

Victory Bonds are a good investment... the safest place that you can put your savings. You should buy them to have money for things you want to do when the war ends. (In case of emergency you can get cash for them.) All the money you invest in Victory Bonds comes back to you eventually. Meanwhile your bonds earn 3% interest.

Your banker will tell you it's good business to put your savings into Victory Bonds.
